

PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHY

Photographs that take you out from behind the scenes and let your customers get to know you.

Would you like photos that speak about you and your creations?

Would you like to intrigue and engage your customers?

Then my branding portraits photoshoot is for you!

What if you don't like being photographed? Know that I'm not too fond of it either. Precisely for this reason, I can understand you, and I will help you overcome this block. After all, it's easier with others than with yourself, right?

How does it work?

First, we will meet in person or via video call, and we will have a chat without any further obligation. And if you decide I'm the right photographer for you, we'll start working together.

Here's how things will go:

1. I'll study your mood board (if you don't have one, I'll help you create it) with which you tell me about yourself and your brand, what kind of photos you prefer and how you want to be seen by your client/target.

This is a fundamental part of my work that will help me understand which props to propose, which light to choose, which location to suggest, and the shooting's general mood.

2. We'll decide together where to do the shooting: at your home, in your office, outdoors, or the photo studio.
3. We'll evaluate together what you'll wear on the day of the shooting, so I'll help you choose the right clothing to convey the messages and values you want. And if you are thinking: "Oh my God, I have nothing to wear!" Don't worry, with my experience, I'll support you in the choice to feel entirely at ease during the shooting!
4. Shooting: no duckface, and everything will be fine.
5. Choice of photos: after first screening, I'll send you about ten photos (min. 10, max. 15) with my considerations to help you choose.
6. Post-production
